MI6 DECLASSIFIED IS ON HER MAJESTY'S SECRET SERVICE ISSUE #7 OUT NOW

(London, UK, March 29th 2010) MI6 Declassified, the full-colour magazine celebrating the world of James Bond 007, returns with its double-oh-seventh issue.

Far from the failure that has been unfairly attributed to George Lazenby's one-off outing, "On Her Majesty's Secret Service" was a box-office success back in 1969, and is one of the most loved adventures in the Bond canon by today's fans. As the movie celebrates its 40th anniversary, what better time to pay tribute to the late director Peter Hunt, go behind the scenes with production designer Syd Cain and take an in-depth look at the film's history.

This issue also includes a special feature on "The World Is Not Enough" boat chase and a discussion with writers Neal Purvis and Robert Wade. With rarely seen photography and anecdotes from cast and crew, MI6 Declassified #7 is not to be missed!

Featured in the seventh issue:

- Making On Her Majesty's Secret Service - an historical account 40 years on
- "Happy As A Sand Boy" - a tribute to director Peter Hunt
- Production Designer Syd Cain on creating Blofeld's mountain lair
- Tracing back 007's literary journey in O.H.M.S.S.
- Come In 007, Your Time Is Up - Sarah Donohue on breaking boats and waves
- Writing The World is Not Enough - Neal Purvis and Robert Wade reveal all
- Behind the scenes of EA's second generation shooter "NightFire"
- Raymond Chandler speaks with Ian Fleming in The Bond Connection
